Additional resources, CSUF AMST Teach-In: Race, Power, and American Studies II (June 9th, 2020)

For those interested in further education on issues of anti-Black racism and violence, as well as resistance, the teach-in organizers compiled this list of selected resources that are closely related to the mini-lectures of the teach-in. This, of course, is not a comprehensive list of all important or relevant resources, but we hope it can give you ideas of places to start.

We encourage you to set a reasonable expectation for yourself, rather than being overwhelmed by this list (i.e. you might start with the goal of reading one of the books and watching one of the films below this summer).

Books

- Sudbury, Julia (ed.). Global Lockdown: Race, Gender, and the Prison Industrial Complex (Routledge, 2005)
• Lucy A. Delaney, From the Darkness Cometh the Light, or, Struggles for Freedom (1891, available online through UNC “Documenting the American South), https://docsouth.unc.edu/neh/delaney/delaney.html

Articles, Websites, and Syllabus Projects

• Charleston Syllabus: Readings on Race, Racism, and Racial Violence. Edited by Chad Williams, Kidada E. Williams, and Keisha N. Blain (University of Georgia Press, 2016)

Films/Television Shows

• LA92 (National Geographic, 2017) Also available on Netflix.
• Out in the Night (PBS, 2014)
• Say Her Name: The Life and Death of Sandra Bland (HBO, 2018)
• Stonewall Uprising: The Year that Changed America (PBS, Airs June 9, 2020)
• Time: The Kalief Browder Story (2017)
• Treasure: From Tragedy to Trans Justice – Mapping a Detroit Story (Frameline, 2015)
• Wattstax (1973)
• When They See Us (2019)

Other Sources

Crenshaw, Kimberlé. "The urgency of intersectionality | Kimberlé Crenshaw" (Ted Talk) via YouTube

Additional suggestions in Scaffolded Anti-Racism Resources compiled by Anna Stamborski, Nikki Zimmermann, and Bailie Gregory.