Course Description

This course explores the historical development of American popular culture as both a series of expressive forms and a set of business enterprises. We will focus our attention on the production and reception of popular culture, studying how marketers and audiences have ascribed meanings to various leisure activities and popular amusements. Throughout the course, we will consider how the ideological content and popular reception of mass culture can be shaped by race, ethnicity, class, gender, age, and nationalism. One of our central aims is to understand how the traditions and techniques of 19th century entertainment forms evolved over time and influenced the modern age of mass media in which we currently live. Subjects for study include stage entertainment, amusement parks, dance halls, sporting events, music, television, film, and fandom.

Required Texts

Kathy Peiss, Cheap Amusements: Working Women and Leisure in Turn-of-the-Century New York

General Education Learning Goals

American Studies 300 meets the General Education "Explorations in Social Sciences" requirement (D.5). In line with CSUF's "Goals of General Education," this course will encourage students to...

- a. Examine problems, issues, and themes in the social sciences in greater depth; in a variety of cultural, historical, and geographical contexts; and from different disciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives

- b. Analyze and critically evaluate the application of social science concepts and theories to particular historical, contemporary, and future problems or themes, such as economic and environmental sustainability, globalization, poverty, and social justice.
- c. Analyze and critically evaluate constructs of cultural differentiation, including ethnicity, gender, race, class, and sexual orientation, and their effects on the individual and society.
- d. Apply theories and concepts from the social sciences to address historical, contemporary and future problems confronting communities at different geographical scales, from local to global.

Course Assignments and Grading Standards

There are two required paper assignments and one in-class midterm exam for this course. Specific guidelines and grading criteria for each assignment will be available on Blackboard.

Assignment #1

You will write a 3-5-page paper in which you compare and contrast the leisure habits of the working class New York women described in Cheap Amusements with the leisure habits of middle class Muncie, Indiana residents described in an excerpt from the sociological study Middletown (available on Blackboard).

Assignment #2

Using Tramps Like Us as a model, you will develop a questionnaire and interview three fans of the same cultural phenomenon. You will write a 6-8-page paper in which you describe and analyze the meaning of fandom for those individuals.

The Midterm Exam will cover material from Jump for Joy and Make Room for Television as well as in-class lectures.

Assignment #1:	30%
Midterm Exam:	30%
Assignment #2	40%

For this course, +/- grading will be used. No extra credit will be offered. Keep all graded work so that any discrepancies can be easily and fairly straightened out.

An assignment is considered late if it is not turned in at the beginning of the class session in which it is due. Late assignments will be lowered one mark per day (NOT per class meeting) after the due date (for example, C to C-). Extensions will be granted on a case-by-case basis for legitimate reasons and only when a student asks for an extension at least 24 hours before an assignment is due.

In accordance with General Education writing requirements, you will have the opportunity to rewrite and resubmit your first paper assignment for a better grade. You may NOT rewrite the assignment if it was turned in late or was failed because of plagiarism.

Participation and Community Policies

I expect you to be actively engaged with the classroom community, the concepts, and the coursework. Class attendance is crucial to your participation and to your success on the assignments, which require you to synthesize material from readings, lectures, and discussions. Please come to class prepared to 1) explain the central argument and methodology of the assigned reading; 2) assess the assigned reading for its relative strengths and limitations; 3) raise questions about the reading; 4) connect the readings to one another; and 5) connect the readings to your broader understanding of contemporary and historical issues in American popular culture.

It is unacceptable to arrive late or to leave class early. If you must leave class early because of an appointment that cannot be missed, make sure that you tell me before class begins.

Cell phones must be on silent or off (not vibrate) and stowed away out of sight.

No text messaging during class. If you text, you will be asked to leave.

Laptops may only be used for notetaking; going online with your laptop is not permitted in class. If you surf the web during class, you will be asked to leave.

American Studies at Fullerton

I am always happy to talk with students about the possibility of majoring, double majoring, or minoring in American Studies. Feel free to drop by my office hours or to schedule an appointment if you would like to learn more about the department or the discipline. Student Accommodations

CSUF complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act by providing a process for disclosing disabilities and arranging for reasonable accommodations. On the CSUF campus, the Office of Disabled Student Services has been delegated the authority to certify disabilities and to prescribe specific accommodations for students with documented disabilities. DSS provides support services for students with mobility limitations, learning disabilities, hearing or visual impairments, and other disabilities. Counselors are available to help students plan a CSUF experience to meet their individual needs. Prior to receiving this assistance, documentation from a qualified professional source must be submitted to DSS. For more information, please contact DSS in UH 101; phone 657-278-3117.

Policy on Selling Lecture Notes

Per California Education Code Section 66450, it is illegal to reproduce course lectures—including your own hand-written or typed lecture notes—for commercial purposes. Thus while you may occasionally loan another student your lecture notes when they have been absent, it is illegal to request money for those notes or to offer them for sale, online or in person. If you have any questions about this policy, or about what constitutes the legal and ethical sharing of class materials with another student, please contact your professor for guidance. Students who violate this standard are subject to disciplinary sanctions by the University, including failure in the course and suspension from the university. Any student who violates this code will be referred to the Dean of Students Office, Judicial Affairs for disciplinary action under the Student Conduct Code.

Academic Integrity

Integrity is an essential component of all students' academic experience. Students who violate university standards of academic integrity are subject to disciplinary sanctions, including failure in the course and suspension from the university. Since dishonesty in any form harms the individual, other students, and the university, policies on academic integrity are strictly enforced. I expect that you will familiarize yourself with the academic integrity guidelines found in the current student handbook. [<http://www.fullerton.edu/handbook/>]. Cheating is defined as obtaining or attempting to obtain credit for work by the use of any dishonest, deceptive, fraudulent, or unauthorized means, or helping someone commit an act of academic dishonesty. (UPS 300.021). Examples include, but are not limited to:

Unacceptable examination behavior: communicating with fellow students, copying material from another student's exam or allowing another student to copy from an exam, possessing or using unauthorized materials, or any behavior that defeats the intent of an exam.

Plagiarism: taking the work of another and offering it as one's own without giving credit to that source, whether that material is paraphrased or copied in verbatim or near-verbatim form.

Unauthorized collaboration on a project, homework or other assignment where an instructor expressly forbids such collaboration.

Documentary falsification, including forgery, altering of campus documents or records, tampering with grading procedures, fabricating lab assignments, or altering medical excuses.

Campus Emergency Procedures
