

CSUF AMERICAN STUDIES

MASTER'S PROGRAM

Why CSUF American Studies?

American Studies at CSUF has a long history of helping media professionals and artists integrate knowledge and methodologies from the humanities and social sciences into the production, distribution, and evaluation of creative works. Our courses provide a deep understanding of American diversity and teach methods for analyzing and addressing a multitude of audiences. We ask critical questions about the roles of media--news, film, radio, television, games, social--in the larger tensions that have shaped America's past and present, teach you the skills necessary to analyze content, reception, and impact, and help you express your findings in creative ways.

- Strong emphasis on understanding media's impact in diverse social, cultural, and political contexts
- Diverse classes that examine America from a variety of perspectives
- Discussion-oriented curriculum focused on student engagement

Get more information: Dr. Dustin Abnet, dabnet@fullerton.edu
<https://amst.fullerton.edu/graduateprogram/index.html>

